A KISS, THEN A BULLET

Count Palffy, of Austria, Embraces His Wife and Blows Out His Brains.

HIS HOME IN A COTTAGE IN A JERSEY APPLE ORCHARD.

MYSTERY OF A NOBLEMAN'S EXILE.

A scion of a princely house of Austria-Hungary, a man who could trace his ancestry back to the year 1320, took his own life last Monday evening at Mahwah, N. J. He was Count Rudolph Palffy.

He was the cousin of the head of one of the branches of the house which numbers among its members the Princes Palffy d'Erdoes and the Princes of Thilano. The very name of Palffy proves the long lineage from which the suicide descended. The name is derived from Pauli Filius, the son of Paul.

This Count Rudolph Palffy, whose kin-men possess large estates and hold high-sounding titles, lived with his wife in a two-story frame house in the middle of an apple orchard at Mahwah. Eight miles south of Tuxedo is Mahwah. It is on the line of the Erie Railroad, at the foot of the Ramapo Mountains.

Thore Theodore A. Havemeyer, the millionaire sugar refiner, who is the Austrian Consul General at the Port of New York, owns a great tract of land. It includes a deer preserve and a pheas-antry. The house in which Count Palffy killed himself is on Mr. Havemeyer's estate.

Eighteen months ago Count Palffy and his wife went to live in that house, which is isolated even from the little village of Mahwah.

Matthew Hicks's house, the nearest to it, is a mile away.

The Count seemed to be about thirty-two years old. He was of medium height, with black hair, mustache and goatee.
He seemed reconciled to his position, and in the language of Mahwah, "J. J. did not put on any airs." He dressed plainly, and was not only polite to the villagers, but jovial, sometimes drinking beer with them. Indeed, the Count was fond of beer, but no man ever saw him under its influence. He was kind and free between his house and Mahwah, for he had no horse. It was plain that his income was scanty. The village gossip declare that he received a draft for $100 every three months in a big envelope bearing foreign postage stamps. They say, too, that Mr. Havemeyer paid Count Palffy $25 a month for taking care of his park. Whatever his income, the Count eked it out by shipping to New York the apples from the orchard around his house and selling them for whatever price they would fetch. His house is neatly furnished. His wife, a woman of refined and amiable manners, kept it in the nearest order.

Count Palffy was extremely reticent about himself and his past. Curious ones in Mahwah, by the way, have history piece by piece as it fell from his lips in his most confidential moments.
It appears that Count Palffy had been a Lieutenant in the Austrian Hussars, and had held responsible positions in the Imperial and Royal Department of Posts. He married a Swiss woman who was his inferior in rank, but in every other respect a suitable and worthy wife for him. His noble relatives were bitterly opposed to the marriage, but he wedded her, and she followed him to the wedding, they discarded him. The Count traveled awhile around the Continent, then having reached the bottom of his purse, he came to America. His first call was upon Mr. Havemeyer.
Then he and the Countess went to live in the little house in the apple orchard.
About 6 P. M. Monday, the Count entered his house from the yard in the rear, where he had been walking. He was sitting in the dining-room.
His husband walked up to him, embraced him and said: "I love you dearly, my wife looked up at him and smiled.
Without a word she turned to the door of the dining-room, whipped pocket, put the revolver from his temple and pulled the trigger. He fell backward, his head striking the door, his legs in the hall.

The Count's wife, agonized with terror, threw herself on his body. Her # shrieks and her endearing cries, "Speak to me, my husband, speak to me; tell me you are not dead!" alarmed Mrs. W. E. Miller, of this city, who, with her husband, was a guest of the Count. Mrs. Miller ran to Nathan Hicks's house for help. Dr. Zabriskie, of Mahwah, and Dr. De Yoe, of Ramsey, were called, but, of course, could do nothing. Cor- oner John J. May, of Ramsey, went to the house yesterday morning, and after hearing the facts as he related, re- ceived a permit for burial.

Some persons in Mahwah say that Count Palffy had lately been preoccupied and moody. They think he had been brooding over his fallen fortunes, and, in despair, killed himself. The Countess is prostrated, and can offer no intelligent explanation of her husband's deed. Cablegrams telling of his death were sent to the Countess relatives. The body will be embalmed and will not be finally buried until orders are received from the authorities.

In response to a telegram, Mrs. Haver-meyer and her family arrived at their country place yesterday afternoon.
Mrs. Havemeyer did not accompany her husband. It was stated last night at Mr. Havemeyer's residence, No. 24 Madison avenue, that he was not at home.

TO BECOME VERMONT'S BISHOP.
Father Hall Cables that His Order Has Released Him.

(Special to The World.)
BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 3.—Rev. J. Isham Hall, President of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of Vermont of the Protestant Episcopal Church, yesterday received from Father Hall, of Oxford, England, a cablegram accepting the Bishopric of this diocese, subject to confirmation by the House of Bishops. The message states that the Society of St. John the Evangelist, with the Bishop's sanction, has released Father Hall from his obligation to the order.

Dr. Hall was elected to the Bishopric of Vermont Aug. 30 to succeed the late Rev. W. H.
A. Bissell. Dr. Hall is an Englishman, a graduate of Oxford University. He early joined the Society of St. John the Evangelist, known as the Cowley Fathers, from their house at Cowley, taking the vows of celibacy and obedience.

Dr. Hall came to this country twenty years ago, being then in the twenty-third year, he came under the charge of the Rev. J. J. Hall, the Evangelist, in Boston, and was a member of the American branch of the Society of St. John the Evangelist. Dr. Hall was an intimate friend of the late Bishop Doane. He is a member of the Standing Committee of the Massachusetts Diocese and is thoroughly American in his sympathies.

SENATOR STOCKBRIDGE HURT.
He Is Struck by a Chicago Cable-Car and Picked Up Unconscious.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—United States Senator F. H. Stockbridge, of Michigan, was hurt by a cable car at 8 o'clock today. He attempted to board a northbound grip car on Wabash avenue at Peck Circuit, and seized the platform rail, but before he could get on the platform he was struck by the southbound grip, thrown into the street and dragged twenty feet over the rails and rough stones.

The Senator was picked up unconscious and removed to the Richfield Hotel, suffering from injuries about the head and many bruises about the body.
The full extent of his injuries could not be learned from the attending physicians to-night.
